

Talking Science in Crisis

A conversation with WHOI senior scientist Chris Reddy and WHOI Director of Research Communications Ken Kostel

July 25, 2023

2:00pm–3:30pm

Redfield Auditorium

45 Water St,
Woods Hole, MA

THIS EVENT IS FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC.

Join WHOI's Chris Reddy, oceanographer, inventor, and author of the book Science Communication in a Crisis: An Insider's Guide, for a conversation about how science works when time is of the essence.

With behind-the-scenes stories and high-profile case studies, including the Deepwater Horizon oil spills and the 2021 X-press Pearl disaster in Sri Lanka, Chris lays out the major challenges that scientists face during an environmental emergency, when clear, consistent communication matters most, and offers advice on how to navigate the maze of competing interests to deliver actionable information.

Join us for light refreshments in the Redfield Lobby immediately after the event.

Autographed copies of Science Communication in a Crisis will be available for purchase.
